In response to an invitation from the Republican, the correspondents spent a pleasant day in Marshall, Monday. At the appointed hour the editor was on hand at Hotel Ruff to receive his guests from the various parts of the county, presenting each with a badge, program and Chautauqua ticket for the afternoon and evening's entertainment. We greatly enjoyed an automobile ride about the city including a trip to M. V. C. and the Colony. Profs. Evard and Penick were ready to receive us at M. V. C. We visited the chapel, laboratories, museum and the society halls. From there we went to the Missouri Colony and were met by Drs. Simcoe and Powell who gladly showed us through the different wards of the institution. We were fortunate in reaching there at the noon hour for we had the opportunity of being present while dinner was served to the inmates. We then sped back to Hotel Ruff where a Banquet awaited us, now just here the program is very interesting and for particulars call on Saline City and Gilliam scribes. I think all the correspondents will agree with me and say they spent a most enjoyable day and one to be remembered. So here's to the Marshall Republican—"Long may you live and die never."
